

Condolence Message on the Death of Editor-in-Chief Prof. VK Joshi

On July 7th, 2021 we were deeply shocked and saddened to hear the news of our Editor-in-Chief Prof. V.K. Joshi left us. Prof. Vinod Kumar Joshi, who is the founder of International Journal of Food and Fermentation Technology, started 10 years ago. The International food and fermentation community lost one of its most distinguished and renowned members. He had more than 32 years on teaching, academic experience and had authored many books published in many reputed International Publishing firms. His supervision helps IJFFT to establish quality publications and recognized as one of the reputed journal in the field of fermentation technology. His major contribution is in wine fermentation technology and is a wine consultant.

He will be truly missed by our Editorial board, New Delhi Publishers and our Association, Association for Agriculture, Environment and Biotechnology, his friends and family. It is a fact that we lost him, but we did not lose him as a model in our life, his devotion and strength.

In this sad moment, NDP and AAEB are concerned about the future of IJFFT. We are confident that Prof. V.K. Joshi has left it in good hands.
